

Vince & Natalie: Houmas House Wedding

August 9th, 2009 | Wedding

Vince and Natalie's wedding was Beautiful. From the moment we step foot on the grounds everything went perfect. Ok wait a minute (one thing wasn't perfect), let me back up there, actually I made a rookie mistake and wore some new shoes. I didn't even make it to the bridal cottage before my heels started bleeding. I know gross right and maybe TMI for a blog post. Trust me my new "wedding" shoes are ordered and they may not be cute, but they are comfy and will ensure that my feet NEVER hurt and my heels never bleed again!... Okay back to the wedding 😊

Everyone was so relaxed and so nice! This makes for a great wedding day! Here are a few photos from the day. How gorgeous is the bride? My favorite picture is the third one down where her mom is wiping her tears.

As I was trying to narrow down images to share on the blog I asked Hank which one he thought I could do without and he said this one.... I know this isn't a typical wedding picture but there is something about it that I like. It reminds me of those old school pictures when people didn't smile. Not sure why they didn't smile, I guess having your portrait made was serious business.

These people knew how to boogie!!! Even the grandmothers were out there!
